

Christina Rose Dyson

Christina Dyson is a PhD candidate at The University of Melbourne, in the Faculty of Architecture, Building and Planning. Her research focus is nation, identity, and the natural aesthetic in Australian gardens, 1945 to 1985. Christina also works with Context Pty Ltd, Melbourne, as a heritage consultant. Recent projects with Context have included the preparation of conservation management plans for the Meeting Place Precinct, Kurnell, in Botany Bay National Park, New South Wales, and the Walter Burley Griffin designed Ranelagh Estate in Mount Eliza, Victoria. For each of these reports, Context recently won the Heritage award at the Planning Institute of Australia's New South Wales and Victorian Divisions' Awards for Planning Excellence 2008, respectively. Christina is also Co-editor of Australian Garden History, the journal of the Australian Garden History Society.

Australian Institute of Architects

ISC20C

ICOMOS International Scientific Committee on 20th
Century Heritage