

George Wilkie

Architect, planner, interior designer, author and academic. George has designed and managed many architectural and heritage conservation and intervention projects. He spent many years directing, developing and lecturing in the Interior Design Degree Course at the University of Technology Sydney. His work included, developing and teaching heritage conservation and intervention courses. Always interested in providing quality information to the architectural, planning and building professions, as well as the wider community, George has published a number of books including; Building Your Own Home, New Holland & Practical Garden Planning, Child & Associates. He is currently employed by the Hobart City Council as Manager Architectural Projects, where almost every projects has historical, heritage, architectural, urban-scape and landscape factors.

R.L. Broughton

Bob Broughton practiced as an archivist and, rare book librarian in Australia and the U.K. for over three decades. Returning to Tasmania, Bob specialized in rare book collections as University of Tasmania Archivist. Bob made a transition to cultural heritage management and collection curation, created cultural business development schemes for Arts Tasmania, taught paper preservation, curated the Moorilla Museum of Antiquities and established a micro business valuing cultural materials. Bob has a particular interest and experience in indigenous issues in cultural heritage management. Bob is currently the Librarian for the Hobart City Council, including their heritage collections.

Australian Institute of Architects

ISC20C

ICOMOS International Scientific Committee on 20th Century Heritage