

Hannah Lewi

Dr Hannah Lewi is an academic and architect with research interests in the fields of modern architecture history and theory, conservation and heritage; and new media technologies for history and heritage communication. She is the convener of the Victorian working group of Docomomo Australia and on the Docomomo International Specialist Committee for Landscapes and Urbanism. She has been a past president of SAHANZ, and co-editor of their journal 'Fabrications'. She recently co-convened the international symposium 'Keeping the Past Public: the documentation and conservation of modern public places', and is working on a forthcoming edited book 'Community: Building Modern Australia' with co-authors from the University of Melbourne.

Australian Institute of Architects

ISC20C

ICOMOS International Scientific Committee on 20th
Century Heritage